This modern, 1-story, Colonial Revival style, brick building features an irregularly shaped, tripartite plan. The building is composed of a hipped-roofed center block, flanked on either side by smaller gable-roofed dependencies. The eaves are boxed and accented a plain fascia board. The building's corners are decorated with brick quoins. The centrally located entrance is distinguished by a pedimented portico. Windows are 8/8 with large, wooden surrounds. The Bank of Romney is not a contributing resource because of its recent construction date and very large size. Two historic buildings were destroyed to accommodate this structure. The demolished buildings were the Wirgman Building (HM 047-0011) and the Brady House.
